

010622 1957

<https://www.psychforums.com/schizophrenia/> (post being moderated)

Why are the voices so mean and cruel? - An Answer

When these 'people' put their minds into your brain, they may or may not have their friends minds in their own brain, "revving them up", so they can conform to their peer group inward looking pressure, and ostensibly boast about the harm and pain they caused you.

The strange thing (that I can explain) is that the CTD (like STD - Connectome Transmitted Disease) seems to be transmissible only/primarily between the perpetrator, that is, the person who is putting their mind into someone else's brain. So when they combine their (pathetic) 'abilities', which are in fact disabilities, they are spreading lets call them STD's between each other.

So lets say one of them has a syphilis infection, or similar, when they help each other, they share this STD with each other. What we get, are the behaviours and communications that are symptomatic of their combined diseases.

In summary, though you can not apply the following statement when you are being abused in the moment, here is a thought I would share with you. That it is possible once you recover from the feelings that are unavoidable as a result of what they say, you can feel very sorry for these *&^kwits, because they HAVE MULTIPLE CONCOMITANT PATHOLOGIES, and the malice and hatred that we are subject to, is what and how they feel about their own lives, their unsurprising lack of friends, and life in general.

When I was talking to my voices today, I realised it was like talking to (Christopher Reed) a paraplegic. They are so infected, they can not like, appreciate, be friendly, or be happy, really at any time, because they are soo afflicted with their own pathologies.

Good luck. Meds certainly help.

=====

<https://www.mentalhealthforum.net/forum/threads/why-are-the-voices-so-mean-and-cruel-an-answer.504584/>

<https://www.mentalhealthforum.net/forum/threads/why-are-the-voices-so-mean-and-cruel-an-answer.504590/>

010622 2016

Why are the voices so mean and cruel? - An Answer

When these 'people' put their minds into your brain, they may or may not have their friends minds in their own brain, "revving them up", so they can conform to their peer group inward looking pressure, and ostensibly boast about the harm and pain they caused you.

The strange thing (that I can explain) is that the CTD (like STD - Connectome Transmitted Disease) seems to be transmissible only/primarily between the perpetrator, that is, the person who is putting their mind into someone else's brain. So when they combine their (pathetic) 'abilities', which are in fact disabilities, they are spreading lets call them STD's between each other.

So lets say one of them has a syphilis infection, or similar, when they help each other, they share this STD with each other. What we get, are the behaviours and communications that are symptomatic of their combined diseases.

In summary, though you can not apply the following statement when you are being abused in the moment, here is a thought I would share with you. That it is possible once you recover from the feelings that are unavoidable as a result of what they say, you can feel very sorry for these *&^kwits, because they HAVE MULTIPLE CONCOMITANT PATHOLOGIES, and the malice and hatred that we are subject to, is what and how they feel about their own lives, their unsurprising lack of friends, and life in general.

When I was talking to my voices today, I realised it was like talking to (Christopher Reed) a paraplegic. They are so infected, they can not like, appreciate, be friendly, or be happy, really at any time, because they are so afflicted with their own pathologies.

Good luck. Meds certainly help.

=====

010622 2026

<https://www.psychforums.com/posting.php?mode=post&f=139>

How bad is schizophrenia? - how to explain it for REAL

I say this - that if someone was sick with cancer, and they were contemplating alternatives like chemotherapy etc, in their darkest most unhappy moments, they might think or mentioned euthanasia. Well, they can try chemotherapy, they might die from their cancer, or they can have schizophrenia and be forced into suicide.

I try to explain to people what schizophrenia is like using this sort of analogy.

=====

010622 2028

<https://www.mentalhealthforum.net/forum/forums/hearing-voices-forum.36/>

How bad is schizophrenia? - how to explain it for REAL

I say this - that if someone was sick with cancer, and they were contemplating alternatives like chemotherapy etc, in their darkest most unhappy moments, they might think or mentioned euthanasia. Well, they can try chemotherapy, they might die from their cancer, or they can have schizophrenia and be forced into suicide.

I try to explain to people what schizophrenia is like using this sort of analogy.

=====

010622 2038

<https://www.mentalhealthforum.net/forum/threads/how-bad-is-schizophrenia-how-to-explain-it-to-others-for-real.504595/>

How bad is schizophrenia? - how to explain it to others - for REAL

I say this - that if someone was sick with cancer, and they were contemplating alternatives like chemotherapy etc, in their darkest most unhappy moments, they might think or mention euthanasia. Well, they can try chemotherapy, they might die from their cancer, or they can have schizophrenia and be forced into suicide.

I try to explain to people what schizophrenia is like using this sort of analogy.

=====

180722 1922

<https://www.psychforums.com/posting.php?mode=reply&f=139&t=221114>

Is There Justice For Voices?

Have you ever wished that the voices would stop being so hostile, cruel, and in their words, callous? Well I often do, because they seem to get into this 'mood' where they just hate me. And even though they are delicate little flowers, and if you insult them, they immediately get angry and hate and disturb you more, I usually keep 'negotiating' (negotiating better treatment of me - a word I got from the Hearing Voices Movement coping strategies discussions) and have to make sure I don't think anything that upsets them, and I try to keep the situation diffused. I always feel that it is my best interests to try and keep the situation civilised. But the voices certainly are not civilised.

However, today I had a strange experience. I have to say that I realise the voices are hallucinations, in order to prevent this post from being moderated off the forum. My voices spend a lot of my time talking about how they get away with a lot, especially their terrible brutish treatment of me. And they often say things that amount to the following sentiment: "I bet you wish we would stop hating and hurting you"

Well today, something very unlikely happened. Two of them got contacted by a government agency that will remain anonymous, and they are getting investigated for fraud. One will most certainly "go down".

They, all my voices, often remark while they are hurting me without mitigation, "there is no justice for schizophrenics". I have been brutalised, injured, traumatised, and nearly hated to death for years by these voices. And now that they are getting into trouble I am confronted by a curious dilemma. If I rejoice, despite the fact that I am definitely not the sort of person anyway, I feel that I would be as bad as them. How can I ever derive pleasure from other peoples pain, especially and particularly because I have been put through so much pain myself?

*****

REPLIES

*****

<https://www.psychforums.com/posting.php?mode=reply&f=139&t=214620>

Yep, I hear people I know, and I keep prodigious first person notes to keep track chronologically of what they say. And I have realised a couple of things shocking, but in context, unsurprising.

First, they end up telling you who they are because they want you to know they have got the better of you. This is due to the fact that the pathologies that enable them to talk to you come with a price for them; at a cost (narcissism and sociopathy). It is imperative for them to make you know you are a victim, and their victim.

The second is because they then realise that they can, but only in theory at least, get 'caught' for what they are doing. So they regularly and pragmatically say they are other people, especially celebrities and famous people, in order to dilute their own involvement in your mind, and to make sure that if you tell anyone that you are being brutalized and harassed by them, that you are not believed and so you end up in a mental health ward.

-----

<https://www.psychforums.com/posting.php?mode=reply&f=139&t=216847>

Here's my take on it.

Have you noticed that it is one way? Your voices can hear and speak to you, but you can't necessarily hear them. That is, my voices regularly concede either explicitly or by implication that they have plotted behind your back.

I suspect and hypothesise that the mechanism is "interfering particles" (see quantum physics, what Einstein called "spooky action at a distance") selectively integrated with and into the connectome.

---

<https://www.psychforums.com/posting.php?mode=reply&f=139&t=213314>

Here's my take on it.

Have you noticed that it is one way? Your voices can hear and speak to you, but you can't necessarily hear them. That is, my voices regularly concede either explicitly or by implication that they have plotted behind your back.

I suspect and hypothesise that the mechanism is "interfering particles" (see quantum physics, what Einstein called "spooky action at a distance") selectively integrated with and into the connectome.

And somatosensory and tactile knowledge by the voices is propagated "mirror touch" synesthesia.

---

=====

psychforums
010822 2222

Subsequent to having to direct my full attention to a feature of a healthy life, I thought after all this time I should contribute to this post that I started by clarifying something I postulate is common to the thinking of all 1st rank suffering schizophrenics.

If the psychiatrists are correct (hah hah hah) when asserting that neurophysical substrates are the causal factors underpinning schizophrenia, then there should be true randomness detectable in AVH and AH.

I feel confident that all schizophrenics have realised this truism early in their experiences. I urge anyone to comment on this particular point. Please do. Please.

---

=====

psychforums
010822 22306

I have the same occurrence. I have tried to provide details at my usual level, but the posts got moderated off the forum.

Let me please say this. Consider a hypothetical, where you had reasons for being involved in schizophrenia, and due to factors well beyond your control, you had inadvertently become involved with wise guys. You know, like "mad".

Would you be inclined to lie a lot? Yep, I reckon you would. But what sort of lies would you tell? Well, amongst many others, I suggest you would conceal your true identity, particularly by what I call "dilution", that is, saying so much about any particular thing, that if the truth accidentally got told, it would be lost in the vast amount of knowingly wrong and inaccurate information you had said.

What do you think? In regards to who it is I mean?